Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: On the last Sunday of the liturgical year, our gospel reading gives us an account of the end of time. Christ the Good Shepherd will separate the sheep from the goats. Both were important animals, and so this in itself is not a statement of value, but the king's words give us more insight into the criteria for judgment. Each of us from all nations under the sun – sheep and goats alike – will be judged on how we responded to Jesus' invitation to recognize him in his "least brothers." The righteous in this parable seem oblivious to Jesus' presence among them. Perhaps they did not come to have explicit faith in Jesus, but in caring for those in need, they have cared for Christ himself. In contrast, those who are this parable's "goats" seem to have knowledge of the king's identity: "When did we see you … and not minister to your needs?" Those of us who know Jesus and his love for us bear a particular responsibility to care for the least among us.

To Experience: We celebrate Christ as King of the Universe, but this solemnity also invites us to think on a much smaller scale. Each of us is invited to let him be the king of our own lives. Jesus wants to know us personally, to shepherd us on the path to holiness, but he can only do that so far as we are willing to give up our desire for control.

1. Who do you see as the "least brothers" among us? What can you do to minister to Christ present in them?

Hear to Serve...

For Those Who Doubt

By this point in our lives, I believe all of us, as adults, have faced death—the death of a loved one, whether a spouse, a child, a sister or brother, or a parent. We have all faced death. It is a sad time, to say the least; a time when we feel beaten into the ground and are left in great uncertainty.

In your time of grief, have you ever doubted? Have you ever wondered about life after death—not just life spiritually in Heaven, but also the resurrection of the body, when our bodies are brought back to life? Well, today St. Paul is addressing the Corinthians on this very matter. The Corinthians had doubts, and this was a serious issue for them: it was threatening friendships and families and causing great upheaval in their society. What caused this was not so much the idea of an immortal soul, because the idea of having an immortal soul and being freed from their flawed bodies appealed to the Corinthians. But the idea that their bodies would be raised from the grave was beyond their understanding; for many Corinthians, it was a vile thought.

If we could go back to the beginning of this chapter, we would see that St. Paul reminds them: "Christ appeared to Cepheus, the Twelve, 500 brothers and then himself." (1 Corinthians 15:3-8) So today, St. Paul reminds them of the facts: "Christ has been raised from the dead, the first fruits of those who have fallen asleep." St. Paul is telling them that to deny the resurrection of the body is to deny the resurrection of Christ Himself. If we deny the resurrection, this will be the beginning of the collapse of our whole faith.

St. Paul tells them that our death came through one man, Adam, and that this is our common inheritance. He goes on to say that, just as death came through a man, so the resurrection and eternal life come through another man, Jesus the Christ. This is our victorious inheritance. St. Paul does not tell them that God descended and simply fixed this problem; rather, he reminds them that Christ died and rose from the dead through His humanity, and that it is because of Christ's humanity that we, too, are able to follow Christ in our death and resurrection.

This whole letter of St. Paul reminds us that, even though Christ's tomb is empty, our graves are not. We are still caught in the middle ground of this present world and what is yet to come. So, if we ever wonder, if we ever have doubts like those Corinthians did, doubt no more.

Have faith in Christ's promises and the letter of St. Paul to the Corinthians, for the last enemy to be destroyed by Christ is our death.

Viva Cristo Rey!
Deacon Gary

The Tree of Souls: Remembering Our Departed Loved Ones

Participating in the Tree of Souls is simple yet meaningful. You can Write down the names of those who have passed away – whether family, friends, or others you want to pray for – and place the names on the tree. As you do so, take a moment to pray for them. Your prayers can be short and from the heart. You might say something like:

"Lord, I pray for (name), that you may forgive their sins and grant them eternal rest in Your presence. Amen."

The Tree of Souls reminds us that love never dies, and neither does our connection to those who have gone before us. By praying for them, we help them on their journey to eternal life and keep their memories alive in our hearts.

Lighting the Advent Wreath

Families or individuals are needed to light the Advent Wreath candles each week at Mass, beginning Saturday, November 28.

Call the parish office (HT 773-2380 or SG 773-2511) or sign up at the back of church.

Journey to the Heart of Jesus

The Nitty Gritty on Tithing… How do we proceed?

The Catholic Church does not hold a strict legal mandate on a 10% tithe. So, where does that leave us? Christ in his merciful founding of the Catholic Church gave us the instruments we would need to navigate the murky waters that may lay ahead. I am guessing He was thinking among other things about our relationship with money.

According to Catechism of the Catholic Church (CCC2043) and Canon 222 of the Code of Canon Law, Catholics are required to help provide for the material needs of the Church (worship, apostolic work, charity and clergy support). Scripture and Church teachings emphasize giving freely, cheerfully, and sacrificially from the heart rather than under coercion or strict legal formulas (2 Corinthians 9:7). Yes, we are counselled to give both joyfully and generously. Many dioceses and resources, such as guidance from Catholic Answers, recommend a guideline of 5% to your local parish and 5% to other Catholic charities, missions or the poor.

There is no way around it. Just like we must dig up our dahlia plants in the cold weather and replant them in the spring to enjoy the many beautiful blossoms, it's time to get out our calculator and simply do the math. Since you are reading this article in our church bulletin my guess is that you are already supporting our church and many other Catholic charities as well. You may be surprised by doing a few calculations how well you are already doing and I sincerely thank you. This is a work we do together. You may, likewise, also discover a bit of an imbalance between your intentions and reality. Now would be the perfect time to make an adjustment in the name of justice and mercy or as a sacrificial act of penance and reparation.

We have many ways to give. Contribute weekly by using cash or check in your church provided envelope or by electronic giving. Contact the parish office to set up either option. Every gift has a direct impact on building utilities, maintenance, missalettes, salaries, etcetera. Recurring donations stabilize our cash flow and make it easier to plan for both our short- and long-term future. Support has been exceptional in our special projects collections, thank you. It is a good time to reevaluate your financial goals for giving when planning your estate. Memorials, wills and a Required Minimum Distribution (RMD) from a tax deferred retirement account designated to the church are all greatly welcome. Sadly, over time we have lost several of our strong supporters. Is God calling you to take their place?

In Acts 20:35 St Paul says, "remembering the words of the Lord Jesus, for he himself said, "It is more blessed to give than receive." As you peruse the Sharing form that is being made available to you at Mass, please take the action of checking the box to prayerfully discern what giving generously means to you and return the form to church on November 21st or 22nd. May God give you a bountiful harvest of the blessings that come from giving!

Liturgy and Justice

Today's Mass for the Solemnity of Christ the King brings the liturgical year to a close with a gospel reading that is one of the foundation passages of the gospels. A few weeks ago (back on the Thirtieth Sunday in Ordinary Time), our gospel reading was Matthew 22:34-40. In that passage the Pharisees ask Jesus what the greatest commandment is, and Jesus responds by citing the command to love God with all our heart, soul, and mind, and our neighbor as ourselves. It was, we said here, a reminder of the centrality of love in the Christian life.

Now in today's gospel, Jesus describes the final judgment, the moment when we shall all stand before God. And in doing so, Jesus gives us a vivid look at what loving God and loving our neighbor looks like concretely. Love, we learn here, is not warm feelings, a friendly attitude, or good intentions; love is expressed in doing good for others and especially in supporting and helping those who are most in need in our society: those who are hungry, thirsty, inadequately clothed, sick, or imprisoned. Love, in short, bears fruit in works of justice. That is the concretization of Jesus' "new commandment" of love. After all, doesn't John ask us, "If someone who has worldly means sees a brother in need and refuses him compassion, how can the love of God remain in him?" (I John 3:17). The implication, of course, is that it can't.

Finally, we mustn't miss the other startling point that Jesus makes: that what we do for these struggling and marginalized people we do, in fact, for him. His language is nearly sacramental. As we recognize and acclaim today the kingship of Christ, we are reminded that making such a statement of faith does not come cheaply, because encountering and serving that king unavoidably means coming into contact with people who are poor and serving them. Otherwise we risk making a sham of our worship and, in particular, of celebrating a feast like today's.
