Thoughts for Today's Readings

To the Point: As we near the end of Jesus' public ministry and the end of the liturgical calendar, his teaching becomes more eschatological, dealing with judgment and the end times, but also more apologetic, given in response to the actions of those who criticize him. In today's gospel reading, Jesus summarizes the whole of the Torah, borrowing passages from Deuteronomy and Leviticus. This is not unprompted, but a careful response to another test by the Pharisees. They send a scholar of the law to Jesus, someone who knew the scriptures well. His question is not looking for an answer in itself, but precisely for Jesus' interpretation and something to fault him for – in particular, valuing some things over another. In Matthew 12, Jesus challenges the religious leaders on the interpretation of the Sabbath; this would just give them additional material to object to. In summarizing the Law with these two commandments, Jesus does not negate any of the 613 commandments given to Moses, but brings them to their fulfillment in love. To love God is also to love our neighbor. If these are made our priority, guided by the church and the Scriptures, all else will follow.

To Experience: While Jesus sees the two great commandments as inseparable, in practice, we separate them all the time, tending toward one to the exclusion of the other. On one hand, we "spiritualize" and privatize our prayer and relationship with God, keeping it in a nice, neat box away from the rest of life and other people. On the other, we avoid cultivating a relationship with God, thinking it unnecessary or a distraction from doing what "actually matters": caring for others. For Jesus, loving God is what creates the context for loving our neighbors – that is why it is given first – but it necessitates a personal and external practice of faith in action.

1. Which do you feel more naturally drawn to: love of God or love of neighbor? How can you better hold these commandments together?

Hear to Serve …

Who Are My Enemies?

In this week's Responsorial Psalm, Psalm 18, we proclaim our love for the Lord God. We proclaim that the Lord is our fortress and our strength, our salvation, and that the Lord will keep us safe from our enemies.

The question for us is who are our enemies? For most of us I believe we would start to think of all the people who may have harmed us throughout our lives. Maybe we think of the political party opposite of how we voted, the people our country fights in a war, or maybe we might think of all those who try to enter into our country illegally.

Whatever the case may be for each one of us, I think there's a deeper concern we should be focused on, an enemy so very subtle that you may forget about him. That is the devil. Among all the injustices in our lives, all the wars that have been fought across the world throughout history, there is something deadlier than these physical battles and that's the spiritual battles going on not just in the broader sense but the spiritual battles in our own lives.

Just as there are atheists in the world that deny the existence of God, there are people who will also say that the devil doesn't exist. That is exactly what the devil would prefer, to be unknown, to sit silently in the background, to be allowed to continually tempt us into sin. We also must know that even though the devil can tempt us without mercy, we are ultimately responsible for our own actions.

Let us be aware that the devil is that silent and deadly killer of souls, but we know he's there, if we listen to scripture. We see in Matthew, Mark and Luke, that Jesus sent out the Apostles and gave them authority to cast out evil spirits. Also, in these three gospels we hear that Jesus spent time in the desert being tempted by the devil. St. Paul also warns us in his letter to the Ephesians that, "Our struggle is not with flesh and blood but with principalities, with the powers, with the world rulers of this present darkness." St. Paul is talking about satan and his demons.

We have been warned there is a deadly killer of souls lurking in the shadows, let us be aware, let us do what St. Paul tells us, "Put on the armor of God so you may stand firm against the attacks of the devil."

So, this week as we proclaim our Responsorial Psalm let us keep in mind there is a silent and deadly enemy out there who tempts us, who wants to destroy our souls. But more importantly let us remember that the Lord God is our only hope in our spiritual battles, that He is our strength, our stronghold, and let us extoll God as our Savior.

Viva Cristo Rey!

October: Pregnancy & Infant Loss Awareness Month

The month of October has been designated Pregnancy and Infant Loss Awareness Month in the United States. The Church calls children "the supreme gift of marriage" (Gaudium et spes, n. 50). Losing a baby, whether through miscarriage or as an infant, is one of the deepest forms of grief and pain that a couple may endure. Unfortunately, many couples often suffer without any support, as in the case when a couple loses a child before sharing that they were pregnant with others, or insufficient support because family and friends are unsure of what to say or do because of the difficulty and often suddenness of losing one so young.

https://www.facebook.com/spicathedral/posts/the-month-of-october-has-been-designated-pregnancy-and-infant-loss-awareness-mon

This weekend's Masses will offer prayers for anybody who has been affected by one of these tragic losses.

The blue candle burning at the front of each church is in honor of all parents affected and the memory of their children.

Journey to the Heart of Jesus

To Whom Much is Given
Much is Required…Luke 12:48

Do you see yourself as having been given much? Through his son, Jesus, God calls us to be faithful servants and good stewards of his many gifts. So first of all, let's stop and think of the gifts we have been given. In fact, it's a good thing to close each day with a prayer of gratitude recognizing the many gifts that you were given in that day alone, a loving family, faithful friends, a working car, a warm dinner, etcetera. Your list may be different from mine but they are all gifts! And since every good gift is from God it also belongs to God.

Wait! I need these gifts now! Does God want me to give away the very things he has given me? Well, good question. As a disciple of Christ, we are called to return a portion of what we have been given back to him in gratitude. Think of it as an act of worship, an act of trust. We can give without worry when we have faith like St Paul who said, "And my God will fully satisfy every need of yours according to his riches in glory in Christ Jesus." (Philippians 4:19) God will never be outdone in generosity. As our acts of generosity increase, our focus changes from that of passive recipients to active members of the body of Christ.

Keep in mind the widow's mite (Mark 12:41-44). The value of her gift was not the amount but the sacrifice and heart behind it. To use an athletic expression, she wanted to be part of the team. Her contribution, however small, was profoundly meaningful to God and she was not only on the team but off the bench and in the game!

Stewardship is for you. Yes, you! It is in imitation of Christ who offers his very life as an atonement for our sins that we respond with offering our lives back to him. While we live our lives for Christ now what else can we give him as poor as we are? Wisely and selflessly manage what you have been given. Take personal responsibility and hold yourself accountable to bless others as you have been blessed but most importantly give Christ what he truly wants, your heart.
